Laundry. It's a chore that has to be done. But now, with new products that are safe for the environment, you can tackle your washing with a fresh approach.

Started by two, energetic Aussie mums, Enviroballs Australia products are kind to your skin, kind to your pocket and kind to our planet.

Enviro Washballs are good for up to 1,000 washes and only costs five cents a load. Enviro Dryerballs lasts for years and reduces drying time by 25 per cent and Enviro Stainstick quickly removes tough stains on virtually any fabric.

Owners Penny Allinson and Cheryl Betts say Enviroballs Australia products are proven to be a safe, environmentally-friendly alternative to the majority of commercial laundry powders, liquids and drying products on today's market. They have been independently tested in a laboratory with excellent results, confirming that they are hypo allergenic, contain no nasty, toxic chemicals, and are safe for sensitive skin (even for those with eczema and for babies).

'I tried "environmentally friendly" detergents, but they left sludge in my machine,' says Cheryl, 'and I wondered what effect the residue left on the clothes was having on my skin. After using the Enviro Washball I noticed the eczema I had suffered for years was almost gone, and a visit to a skin specialist confirmed this.'

A horticulturist by trade, Cheryl was also uncomfortable using recycled grey water on her garden knowing the detergents left behind in the water were not good for the plants, soil or, ultimately, Australia's waterways. 'Now Penny and I don't hesitate to use our grey water,' says Cheryl.

Enviro Washballs are recyclable plastic balls containing small ceramic stones (no detergents/chemicals/bleaching agents). The stones soften the water by raising the pH level and allowing it to move through fabric more easily and effectively, removing dirt naturally. They use less water and electricity because there is no residue left on your clothes requiring a rinse cycle for regular loads. Like all other Enviroballs Australia products, the washballs save consumers money. 'No more buying expensive laundry soap and fabric softeners,' says Penny.

Enviro Dryerballs are made from soft rubber material with multiple tips and will not melt, break or shape in a hot dryer. They're non-toxic, control static cling, reduce wrinkles, are safe for all fabrics and fluff your laundry better than chemical-laden fabric softeners or dryer sheets—perfect now that winter is around the corner.
